TRANSFORMED INTO MYSTIC "MIRAGE." Chairman Mark Benson and date Lela Wing imagine Provo's new $275,000 two-story building transformed into the Junior Prom's ethereal "Mirage" as they will see it on the anticipated evening of March 9 when several hundred BYU couples will flock to the year's biggest social event.

Flying BYU Professors Start Unique Extension Courses

Dr. John T. Bernhardt and Dr. Richard D. Poll, assistant professors of history and political science at Brigham Young University, gave four lectures in Las Vegas, Nev., Friday and Saturday to launch a history course offered by the Extension Division to a group of some 30 Las Vegas school teachers.

The course in contemporary problems, History 283a, is under the direction of Dr. Poll under the Extension Division. Ray Beckham of the Extension Division accompanied the professors to assist in starting the course.

Class will meet every Friday and Saturday for five weeks under the direction of BYU faculty members who will fly to Las Vegas each week end to lecture. Two eighty-minute lectures a day will be given in addition to quizzes and special reports.

Other faculty members scheduled to participate in the course are Dr. Brigham D. Madsen, Dr. Russell B. Swensen, Dr. Jay B. Hunt and Professor William C. Taylor, department of history and political science; Dr. A. Smith Bond and Professor Weldon J. Taylor, department of economics; and Dr. Wayne B. Hales, department of physics.

Lectures will cover material on Communism, American democracy, British socialism, economic problems and an introduction to atomic as well as topics to be selected by the class.

Convention Delegate Set

Miss Georgia Maeser, assistant professor of elementary education at Brigham Young University, has been chosen to attend the international convention of the Association for Childhood Education in Seattle, Wash.

WHAT A FACE—John Whittaker, Doctor Bartolo in the Monday-Wednesday cast of "Marriage of Figaro," seems a bit surprised with his make-up. The Opera Workshop presentation ends tonight.

Cats Set For 'Big' Series With Utes This Week End

by Dick Ricks

Having dropped two out of three games to Utah already this year, the Hutchins-Minson powered Cougars will travel to the Ute fieldhouse tomorrow and Saturday night to put on a final, all-out effort to wrap up the conference championship and an NCAA berth.

Officials of both Utah and BYU are putting on the "heat" to suppress feeling which led to a small riot during and after the second game two weeks ago. The many editorials that have been written concerning sportsmanship among fans may have a positive effect on the situation.

Booth Opens In JS For Junior Prom Ticket Sales

Tickets for the Junior Prom, to be held on March 9, can be obtained from a special ticket booth in the lobby of the Joseph Smith building. It was announced.

The booth will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. for all prom goers.

Also of interest to those attending the prom is the announcement that the deadline for renting tuxedos is Saturday, March 3.

This year's prom is promising to be one of the biggest ever, according to Mark Benson, chairman. Mr. Benson also states that the floor of the new State House, the site of the prom, is being given a new coat of wax and all the trimmings in preparation for the big night.

War Projects Sought By Research Body

Appointment of a new faculty committee designed to encourage military and private capital research projects for Brigham Young University was announced last week.

The committee was called by President Ernest L. Wilkinson to explore the problem of utilizing BYU facilities to assist national defense.

An organizational meeting of the group was called Monday afternoon by Dr. Asahel D. Woodruff, dean of the BYU Graduate School and chairman of the committee. The 30 members were divided into defense, civilian and executive committees, with subcommittees for army, navy, aviation and intelligence.

The Redskins will be slightly better rested for the tough and highly important two-game series, as they played but one game with Denver over the week end while the Cougars were on the road for three.

Nevertheless, the Cougars will take the floor as an underdog only in the psychology department, as man for man they still rate tops.

It's a well known fact that the Utes have three good defensive men who concentrate almost entirely on defense. The big problem for the Utah coaching staff will be to stop the other two Cats who are still roaming free.

Jimmy Cleverly, ace Utah guard, is still suffering from the flu and may not be in top shape for the contests. All the Cougars are in good shape physically, and with a trip to Kansas City resting in the balances, they should be in top mental condition.

Couch Watts, realizing the real lack of a home floor advantage for his boys, expects a split with the Utes—but a double win is just what we need.

AWS Primaries Run Today, Tomorrow

Some of the edge of Monday night's heart-breaker in Wyoming's hall-ave was taken off, at least for a few of us who represented BYU, by the hospitality of Wyoming's student representatives.

We were placed in lovely rooms, entertained all day Monday, toured the campus with student president Walt Udrigkeit, and were guests at the game Monday night. Nothing was left undone to make our stay in Laramie as pleasant as possible.

As Marilyn Oldred stayed at a banquet honoring the BYU students, "All the rest of 'em can go, but Wyoming's gotta stay."

Wyoming's regular enrollment totals some 2500-3000 students, but the campus is as spacious as any western university we've seen.

To some 12 permanent buildings now erected are being added several others in a $10,000,000 building program, including a new education building, agriculture building and the mammoth quarter-styled dormitory.

High student fees and living expenses bear part of the burden, but Wyoming's only state supported university gets the benefit of the state's rich tax income.

A revenge-hungry Cowboy crowd went wild Monday night from the opening tip-off to the final gun. They boomed every decision against the Cowpokes and cheered every BYU foul, showing their own ignorance of the game, and lack of respect for the visiting players.

But when the final horn sounded, Wyoming fans knew they had seen a championship basketball team. It was basketball they've very seldom see, anywhere.

Moe Radovich's spectacular shots from the far right hand side of the court kept Wyoming in the game lead throughout the first half, but in the second period, the Cowpoks put the clamps on the Wyoming shooting spree—but good!

To Russ Hillman goes my personal bouquet. Russ was switched to Radovich and glommed onto the sharp-shooting Cowpoke like a shadow, completely eliminating Radovich as a scoring threat.

We mingled freely with Coach Stan Watts and his fifteen charges over the week end, and I want to repeat what has been said more than once before in UNIVERSE columns—"They're a great bunch of basketballers, and great sportsmen. They're a credit to BYU and it's a privilege to know them."

Sportsmanship The Goal ...

Tomorrow and Saturday nights we will be playing our old rivals from around the point of the mountain. These are always the games we want to win the most, whether we are battling for the conference championship or for last place. Both schools want to win more than anything, so matter what the sport.

The last time we played this year there was a little too much extra-curricular activity on the sidelines. It is gratified that cheerleaders are out of order, yet so were many of us. Whether we win or lose the next two nights, let's do it as good sports, no matter what the opposition does. If they want to do things that seem to us to be out of order, then, we should not lower our standards in order to compete with them.

Let's keep the spirit of good sportsmanship alive.—L. L. G.

Opera Cast Congratulated ...

Secret rendezvous, deceptive disguises, and a triple set of love triangles, furnish the inspiration for Mozart's brilliant comic opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," being presented this week by the BYU Opera Workshop.

An outstanding cast of student actors proved to long hair and peasant attire that classical opera can be a magical experience into the realm of fun and fantasy. Rodgers and Hammerstein with all their "South Pacific" would find it hard to match the Mozart-De Pucce competition on any grounds. Add to this a sparkling performance, "lusty scenery, lavish period costuming, and there is little left to be desired.

Particularly noticeable was the superb debut employed by students and ensemble making it possible for an opera new comer to appreciate the clever English translation of the story. Certainly now no one will be heard saying they don't like opera because they can't understand the story. In addition to this highly gratifying point, it is all too seldom that opera is blessed with such high quality ensemble work as that brought out by the director, Nevell Wright, and his talented cast. The orchestra also deserve plaudits for their spirited playing of some very difficult music.—Arden Watts.

Lawmakers Pass Drug Bill ...

Dear Editor:

As college students today and the leaders of tomorrow we will be of value.

Friday morning I cut some of my clothes here at the Y and went up to the State Capitol where I sat in the public gallery and observed the State House of Representatives in session.

Among the legislature bills upon there was a bill passed to change the offense of selling narcotics to a misdemeanor to a felony. Special emphasis was given to the selling of marijuana to a high school student. Before now, anyone caught selling dope has been fined to six months in jail or a fine of $250 or both.

The bill before the house was to change the punishment to a fine of $1000 or one year in jail or both. However, before it was passed an amendment was made wherein the fine was increased to $1500.

I was happy to hear the representative make the amendment and in talking to him afterward Mr. Ward I believe is his name, I said that I thought that it should be even more strict. He agreed with me but expressed the fact that if he had made the amendment stiffer there would have been too much opposition.

The purified person that sells narcotics to the youth calculates his chances of getting caught and paying said amount, and acts accordingly. He makes enough to pay any fine that he might incur and still come out on top. I would put the fine up to at least $3000 and five years in jail. The punishment of anyone who sells dope should smack him right between the eyes. Some people break laws on the spur of the moment; not thinking clearly or by being misled by emotion. Human understanding can enter into these cases but we can be sympathetic or filly daily with the cold, calculating animal who in order to gain filthy gains sells dope to the youth? It is cold-blooded murder on the body and spirit of his victims!

Something To Live Up To ...

Dear Sir:

First of all, I'm writing this as an individual but my concerns I know are those of many, many Colorado Aggie students.

Here tonight for the second consecutive evening your fine basketball team displayed its right to lead the Big Six Conference. But more important, they displayed a quality overlooked by all too many teams. That quality is sportsmanship! Being a loyal Aggie fan, I see all of their home games and so I feel that I have some basis for my opinions. I'm proud as can be of my school and its teams and of their sportsmanship—and, I sincerely hope, they appear as good sports on the other campuses of this conference. Therefore, I look for equal sportsmanship from the teams playing us. Some live up to my expectations and some do not. To me, your team is outstanding in its conduct. As a basketball team, they're good! As sportsmen, they're perfect!

So for me and for a lot of other Aggies, tell them thanks and give them all a dap on the back. We hate to lose, sure, but you just can't have anything but respect for the swell bunch of kids Brigham Young fields each season.

With lots of luck in your Madison Square Garden games—I know you'll do the conference justice!

An Aggie

P.S. Don't get the wrong idea about me. I think the Aggies have a pretty swell club too! So tell your boys to keep practicing hard cause we're going to give them an awful bad run come next season—and you know what? I think the Aggies can beat them!

Sardonian Heads Y Summer Music Clinic

Lawrence W. Sardonian, assistant professor of music, has been appointed permanent head of the Brigham Young University summer music clinic, according to Dr. John R. Halliday, music department chairman.

Arrangements for the thirteenth annual Summer Music Clinic, held July 23 to August 25, will be under Prof. Sardonian. Dr. Halliday will continue to direct the first summer school session.

Professor Sardonian has distinguished himself as an orchestral conductor, Dr. Halliday said. He is the conductor of the BYU symphony orchestra, a group noted for its excellent musicianship. He is a former student of Nicolas Malhotra, former head conductor of the Imperial Russian Symphony at Moscow, and present director of the London Philharmonic orchestra. He has also studied with John Barbirolli, former conductor of the New York Philharmonic orchestra, and present conductor of the British Broadcasting Company philharmonic orchestra.

Professor Sardonian is well-equipped to handle his new duties. He was formerly head of the music department at Mesa College, Grand Junction, Colo. He is also a former student of music at the University of Colorado at Boulder.

ROTC Unit Receives Army Approval Officials Announce

BYU's application for an ROTC unit has been approved by Sixth Army Headquarters, Presidio of San Francisco, Calif., according to officials at Fort Douglas.

However, President Christensen states that no official announcement of approval has yet been received by university officials here. President Christensen is in Washington, D.C., at present conducting army officials and keeping in touch with latest developments.

The unit approved by Sixth Army Headquarters was for an active and inactive ROTC company. It would be the first unit of that type in Utah, and BYU's first ROTC training unit.

Music Head Boasts European Artist On Teaching Staff

Anyone interested in learning to play the bassoon or contra-bassoon, can now take lessons from Jacob Bos, an accomplished Dutch musician, who is teaching those instruments at the Y, according to Dr. John R. Halliday, music department chairman.

Mr. Bos is one of the leading double reed artists in the world. He studied at the Royal Conservatory at the Hague and for some time played with the orchestra of the Royal Navy of the Netherlands. For ten years he played the bassoon in the Concertgebouw orchestra in Amsterdam, Holland, under the baton of internationally renowned director Wilhelm Mengelberg.

Having played under such famous conductors as Jose Turbi, Leopold Stokowski, and Bruno Walter, Mr. Bos is noted for both his ability as a performer and a teacher.

He has been in the United States for nine months and now resides in Springfield.

Faculty Members Plan Music Recital for Monday

A joint brass-woodwind ensemble recital will be presented by Robert Evans, brass instructor, and Lucille Sandberg Evans, woodwind instructor, in the Smith auditorium at Brigham Young University, March 5, at 8 p.m. The program will be sponsored by the BYU music department.

Brass quintet composed of John Allen, Oakland, Calif.; Bert Mason, Springfield, Mass.; Butler, Provo; Raymond Colovich, Eugene, Ore.; and Alma Woodbury, St. George, will play "Two Fantasias" by Sancheli, and "Rome at Night," by Taneiff-Agonoff.

Woodwind quartet composed of Christine Hansen, Teton, Ida.; Dwayne Belt, Las Vegas, Nev.; Shirley Turner, Santa Ana, Calif.; and Preston Empey, Provo, will play Watson's clarinet quartet.

Funeral Music for Queen Mary by Purcell will be performed by a brass quintet composed of Von Atkinson, Pocatello, Ida.; Don Stockman, Coalinga, Calif.; Tom Raye, Provo; William Smiley, Milwaukee, Wis.; and Merin Baker, Oregon.

Boethoven's Woodwind Quintet, and Christen's Quintet will be played by Jerry Long, Ely, Nev.; Blain Edleron, Driggs, Ida.; Richard Ballou, Provo; Glenn Williams, Kemmerer, Wyo.; and Ted White, Provo.

A brass trio will do Poulenc's Sonata for horn, trumpet and trombone. Performers will be Von Atkinson, Pocatello, Ida.; William Wilkes, Eugene, Ore.; and William Smiley, Milwaukee, Wis.

Hart Awaits New Facilities In Nearly-Built Fieldhouse

by Ted Johnson

"We've just been stymied here for forty years," said Dr. C. J. Hart. He was referring to the facilities which are available for his department's work. No one on campus, or elsewhere, will realize the benefit of the new fieldhouse as will the department of health, physical education and recreation.

Dr. Charles J. Hart was graduated from the Utah State Agricultural College with a bachelor's degree and later went on to receive his master's and doctor's degrees at New York University in New York City.

His department in the School of Education is composed of three divisions: health, physical education and recreation. Physical education is divided into the women's section, with Dr. Leona Holbrook as chairman, and the men's division, with Dr. Hart as chairman. These sections are in turn broken down into service and professional courses.

Required of Freshmen
The service courses cover all branches of sports and meet the requirements of the freshmen, who are required to participate in physical education, and they also provide courses which are designed to teach physical activities to those who wish to learn new sports, games and techniques for their own enjoyment.

The intramural program, headed by Clarence Robinson, and the dancing program, directed by Norma Arrington, are also connected with this department.

Designed to fit the needs of those who are majoring in physical education and health, the professional courses cover such fields as coaching, officiating, driver training, physiology and safety, and quality majors in this field for teaching and coaching positions.

At present, there are 103 majors in the department of physical education, of which 20 are women students. Dr. Hart pointed out that the department is never able to supply the demand for women majors in physical education. The department offers a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in the fields of recreation and physical education, and a composite degree in health and physical education.

Five Coaches Help

Although the intercollegiate athletic competition is not connected with the physical education department, five coaches spend part time as instructors, along with the ten full-time members of the teaching staff.

With completion of the fieldhouse, the equipment and space situation will be greatly changed. In contrast to the present setup, the new fieldhouse will provide two gymnasium floors, 60x40 feet, for basketball, volleyball, etc., rooms for boxing, wrestling and correction, courts for handball and squash, along with the main basketball court.

Intramurals will be carried on from late afternoon until early evening, instead of the present late hours, and will provide space for sixty teams playing twice weekly instead of the present forty teams playing once a week. The men's gym, which is now in constant use from 7-15 a.m. until 11 or 12 midnight, will be turned over to BYU High activities.

Madsen Leaves Health Center For Reserve Duty

Dr. Carlos N. Madsen, university physician, has been ordered to active duty at San Diego. He will report March 1 to the Medical Corps of the United States Naval Reserve.

A graduate of BYU and the University of Utah medical school, Dr. Madsen has been university physician since June, 1948. Prior to this he completed his intern hospital work in Hawaii and then came to BYU in March, 1948.

Dr. Madsen's position at the university's health center will be filled by Dr. Bourne, who is expected to arrive March 1. The University Health Center at the present time is comprised of one full-time and one part-time doctor, six full-time and three part-time nurses.

Common Sense

Be it ever so humble, there's no place like your living quarters at BYU. Be it ever so humble, there's no better place to put in practice your best manners whether you're bathing on "D" street or sleeping at Wymount.

Tact, forbearance and consideration for others are necessary for every condition in life. What better place to establish these traits than with your roommates.

Start the day right. Get up in the morning with a pleasant greeting rather than a sour scowl complaining about the quiz coming up all first hour. Even if you have to force good cheer your friends will respond to your pleasant nature.

Respect the property of others. Hands off your roommate's belongings. "Sally won't mind if I borrow her pen for my 7:45," you think to yourself. Sally does mind when she searches for her pen high and low on the way to her 8:20 class. Don't be a borrow-and-pay-later. If, in an emergency you must borrow, always ask permission, then return the item promptly and in good condition. Even postage stamps add up.

How do your personal habits stack up? Do you have tendencies to leave your bed unmade all day, or use the top of the desk as a filing case for letters, papers, magazines, apples, etc.; or pile your clothes on your bed for weeks and chances? Take the responsibility to put your personal belongings in their proper place. It may seem more convenient to hang your jacket on the bed, but it doesn't improve the look of your room or your jacket.

Wiping your feet off before entering your dorm or apartment seems a nuisance. Is modesty better, however, much underfoot dust would be removed if everyone followed the suggestion.

Sunny loves to visit with you, but if you bubble about the game last night as she sits with his accounting assignment before him, cut the conversation short. A blasting radio is also hard to cope with when trying to study. Observe quiet hours. Loud boisterous talking and gutturing has its time and place. You be the judge.

Don't be afraid to apologize when you're in the wrong. Curb your curiosity. Never peek into your roommate's diary or private mail. Be generous with "Please," "Thank you," and "I'm sorry." Don't criticize others unkindly. Don't impose upon them or ridicule their efforts.

Your living quarters should be a pleasant source of relaxation and enjoyment! Do you do your part?

Donates Pratt Pointing

Mrs. Clarence Tuttle, grand daughter of Orson Pratt, has presented Brigham Young University with a portrait of her famous grandfather, according to Prof. B. F. Larsen, art department chairman.

The painting was done by Lorin Pratt, son of Orson Pratt, and Mrs. Tuttle's uncle. It is an exceptionally fine portrait of the early pioneer and scientist.

Ardean Watts Wins Frosh Theme Prize

A box of chocolates goes to Ardean Watts, Idaho Falls, Ida., for submitting the winning theme title suggestion for the student body dance, according to the Freshman committee.

Mr. Watts' theme, "Mystic Mathhouse," won out over other suggestions turned in to the theme contest. Judges of the contest were Eugene Harris and Dick Devey. "Remember that name," says Doyle Rust, dance chairman, "for you won't want to miss the whirl being held for the entire student body."

Canning To Leave For Ph.D. Studies

Ray R. Canning, assistant professor of sociology at Brigham Young University, has been granted a year's leave of absence, according to Dr. Arlet S. Halliday, sociology department chairman.

Professor Canning will work toward the Ph.D. degree at the University of Utah.

He received the B.S. degree in 1942 from the Utah State Agricultural College, and the M.S. degree in 1948 from Brigham Young University. He has done graduate work at the University of Southern California.

A former teacher at the Provo Seminary, and a special instructor in the BYU religion department, Professor Canning joined the University staff as a permanent faculty member in 1947.

He spent over three years in the United States Army, fighting throughout the battle for Guadalcanal as a rifle platoon leader in the 4th Infantry division. He was wounded three times and was decorated with the Silver Star and the Bronze Star in addition to three purple heart decorations.

When Winter Comes

Connecticut campus University of Connecticut student newspaper, recently had the painful duty of reporting "snowball riots" on campus.

"We were shocked to learn," declared the paper, "that during the past week there have been three casualties among the student body, and countless pains of glass shattered in the dormitories, as a result of several . . . snowball riots."

Continued the editorial, "There is absolutely no excuse for such lack of responsibility on the part of our supposedly 'mature' students." The casualties included two eye injuries and one ear injury.

"To make matters worse, the rioters were reported to have aimed some of their missiles at 'security officers' who were evidently trying to quell the uprising. 'Such actions,' said the paper, 'can only be paralleled by the type of mob violence favored by totalitarian nations with their thugs and goons.'" ACP.

Fashion Trends

by Gloria Wallis

With prom time just around the corner and dinner-dances and invitations slated for almost every week end, current question in campus fashion is that of converting the more extreme evening gowns to conform with church standards.

Don't fret and fuss gals, there is a vast array of possibilities to make that now bouffant gown even more becoming without detracting from the lines of the model. Sit down with paper and pencil and let your imagination go to work for you. Sketch out a few ideas and then go to work.

Jackets, boleros, capes, fitted yokes are only a few of the possibilities.

If you are one of those who "can't sew a seam," just relax. Had you thought that a professional seamstress could help you? There are several in this locality, who can offer ideas as well as service. The Clothing and Textiles department would also be glad to help any panic stricken coed.

We think the best idea, however, is to do it yourself. When you get down to the project it actually takes a minimum of effort. Let's look in on a few campus models and see what they're doing.

Strapless formal seems to offer the biggest problem. It is a stole came with your formal your worries are over. Margie Driggs, Phoenix, Ariz., is filling in a yoke and designing cap sleeves for her black net gown with material from the stole.

A pert jacket will be worn with Mary Ann Maughan's turquoise satin gown. The jacket originated from a black lace stole that was formerly worn with the dress. Louis smart too, on this Portland, Ore., coed. A simple beffuffed cape is worn by Dorothy Doyle, Phoenix, with her red chiffon gown.

How about a bolero? JoAnne Milligan, Seattle, Wash., likes her black velvet bolero to wear with iridescent mauve taffeta. Betty Ross, Ogden, is also using the bolero idea on one matching a baby blue satin gown. Billie Lou Hunt, Burbank, Calif., covers the strapless bodice of her gown with a black net shawl, worn over the shoulders and pinned at the waistline with artificial flowers.

LaVonne Thomander, Maplewood, N. J., designed a midway jacket of gold taffeta to complete her gown of black touched with a gold design. The jacket features kimono sleeves and a tiny Chinese collar.

If you're starting from scratch like Blanche Poulson, Lehi, Idaho, Canada, keep in mind that there are countless designs and pat-

THE GREAT COMMANDMENT

Thursday, March 1 4:15 P.M.

Joseph Smith Building

25c Fee

Sponsored by Audie-Visual Aids

Today's Film Tells Of The Life Of Christ

This week's classic film, "The Great Commandment," will be presented by Audie-Visual Aids Thursday, March 1, in the Smith Auditorium at 4:00 p.m. Admission fee will be 25 cents.

The story of Jesus of Nazareth bringing about peace during a revolt against the tyranny of the Romans is simply told with depth and tolerance.

Produced by Cathedral Films, "The Great Commandment" was sold to 20th Century-Fox who promised theatrical distribution. This was just before the war and the government stopped general release on the film thinking that its strong antiwar message might have a crippling effect on our entering at the opportune time.

"The Great Commandment" was the first production of Cathedral Films organized by James K. Fredrich 1938. Fredrich is a pioneer in the field of religious films and started a whole new crop of independent producers following in his footsteps.

He inherited $100,000 from his father and went to Hollywood to try to get a studio to produce a film based on the Bible but was told "Bible and box office don't mix."

After futilely banging on studio gates, he splurged his entire fortune on "The Great Commandment."

Terms with interesting neckline and sleeve details. Blanche's gown is designed in tulle and satin. Covered buttons parade down the front from a square neckline. Tulle sleeves end in a pointed cuff.

All in all, you needn't groan in dismay wondering what you can do about converting your evening gown. Go to . . . A little imagination, a few good ideas, and a bit of time and patience will pay off. See you at the prom!

Housing Open For Summer Quarter Students

Excellent housing facilities will be available for all students attending Brigham Young University during the 1951 summer quarter, according to John F. Inge, director of student housing.

All single students can be provided for in school dormitories. Women students will be housed in Allen Hall, and men students in Wymont dormitories. There will also be plenty of off-campus rooms available near the university, Mr. Inge said.

Married couples, with families can be provided with apartments near the school, he added.

Cafeteria facilities will be available to all students who desire them, Mr. Inge said. All applications for housing should be made to the office of student housing as early as possible in order to assure better selections.

Study Fellowship Awarded Student

Charles F. Fulham, Ogden, a BYU senior, will study for his Ph.D. degree at the University of Nebraska on a fellowship granted him by the Lincoln, Neb., institution, according to Dr. Thomas L. Martin, dean of the college of applied sciences at BYU.

He has been awarded a three-year scholarship toward the degree and will specialize in the plant breeding field.

New Psych Class Set For Spring Quarter

Business psychology will be taught during the spring quarter at 7:45 a.m., according to instructor Robert M. Peterson, newly-appointed to this position.

The department in psychology has been previously taught by Professor M. Wilford Poulson.

Valiant Cougars Stopped By Varden's Roof Duster

by Keith Larson

Ed Varden, stock longshot artist, took only one shot in Monday night's hectic battle, but he had many poles in the waning seconds of the game bristled him as hero for the night and kept alive the Wyoming Cougars' hopes for a share for the Cougars' crown.

Varden made his first appearance in the game just before Jerry Ramsey's foul toss gave the BYU a 49-48 edge with 20 seconds left to play. He then hit for two from outside to give the Cougars a 50-48 victory and enable them to salvage 1 out of 4 for the season against the Cougars.

The Cougars piled up an impressive 33-19 halftime lead with Ramsey spearheading the attack and chalking up 15 points, most of them coming from his uncanny "on the move" shots. Ed Shattow's aggressive assignment and jamming the center defense looked sharp in holding the Cougars to a surprisingly low first-half 19 points.

The first thirteen minutes of the second half saw a fired-up crew of Cougars, led by Jones, outscore Wyoming 24 to 9 and pull into a 47-42 lead for the first time in the ball game.

After an exchange of charity shots, Jones took a feed from Richey and laid it up for a 46-41 Cougar lead.

Samuelson countered with two and Dick Haug tipped a missed free throw through a minute later to give Wyoming a 49-46 lead and send them into the post-vertial Shattow stall.

Ramsey then hit for 2 and 1 only to have Varden's crap drop grace delay the Cougar title bid and add fuel to the anticipated BYU games this week end in Salt Lake City.

Bowling Teams Intramurals Enter Third Week of Play Season Tills

Following two weeks of intramural bowling activity, the Smelly Dogs and Southern States are leading the eight-team league with two wins and no losses, followed by the Northern States with one win and no losses.

In last week's round the Bookstore routed the masonaries of Delta Phi 1425 to 1190 while the Smelly Dogs outdid their way through the Trappers 1428 to 1426. Rimmer has it that the panner was a mostly dog.

The Northern States edged by the Faculty 1306 to 1311 while the Southern States topped Alpha 1298 to 1293.

Sports Quicks

by Dick Riels

The Wyoming skidmark was a hard game to lose, but that second half rally changed the idea of a lot of skeptics that the Cougars buckle under pressure. The Laramie "half acre" was reeling under pressure Monday night with the Cats trailing 33-19. Beginning the second half, the Cowboys scored first to lead by 16 points.

That's a lot of points to have to overcome against Wyoming, especially on their home floor. Old reliable Dick Jones did a yeoman's job in narrowing the gap during the short time he was there. He's serving the Cougars like Jim Konstanty served the Phillies.

Almost—But Not Quite

It's doubtful that Jerry Romney will ever come closer to being the league's top hero than he came in the last few seconds at Laramie. With the Cats trailing by two points, he drove all the way down for a layup and was fouled in the process. With 19 seconds to go, he hit on his foul pitch to send the Cougars out in front 49-48. It looked like Stan Watts "comeback" kids were on their way to the NCAA after being almost hopelessly beaten for three-fourths of the ball game. But, Oh what repercussions followed the breaking of this golden bubble by little Ed Varden, who hit a roof scraper from the middle of the court. He only played 19 seconds of the ball game, but they'll probably build a 150-foot statue in his honor to rest in one corner of the new Wyoming fieldhouse as an inspiration to future athletes.

A Case for Bleacher Conches

A subject of controversy, but hardly deserving of any argument at all, is whether Stan did the right thing in letting Jerry shoot his foul pitch with 19 seconds to go. Jerry had been hitting well on his foul pitches, so chances were that he would make this one. That would put the Cougars ahead with the odds in their favor that they could keep Wyoming from scoring for those few seconds. Varden had one chance out of ten to come from the middle of the court, especially when he wasn't even set. Minnie came within an inch of blocking the shot.

If Romney had missed his foul pitch, the Cougars had an even chance of regaining control of the ball or tipping it in. On the other hand, if the Cougars had taken the ball out of bounds, they'd take a chance of having it intercepted, or travel with it, or any number of things. The odds were with Stan, but lady luck was noticeably absent.

The UNIVERSE staff have put their heads together, so to speak, and have come up with what should resemble an honest effort to choose a Skyline Six All-Conference basketball team. Two squads will be chosen—according to ability and not position. Our choices will be chosen to argument, but what All-Conference or All-American team isn't?

On the first five we've chosen the two men who stand far above their rivals in the conference and lead the scoring parade, our own Roland Minson and Utah State's Burt Cook. Then we've chosen Mel Hutchins as the big man, both in scoring and on the boards. Rounding out the top five are Glen Smith, Utah, and Moe Radovich of Wyoming.

UNIVERSE ALL-CONFERENCE

First Team

|---------------|---------------|
| Roland Minson | Brigham Young |
| Burt Cook | Utah State |
| Mel Hutchins | Brigham Young |
| Glen Smith | Utah |
| Moe Radovich | Wyoming |

Second Team

| Bill Gossett | Colorado A&M |
| Glen Anderson | Colorado A&M |
| Ladd Anderson | Utah State |
| Paul Shrum | Utah |
| Dale Toff | Denver |

Honorable Mention

|--------------------|---------------|
| Harold Christensen | Brigham Young |
| Kent Bell | Utah |
| Jerry Romney | Brigham Young |
| Jimmy Cleverly | Utah |
| Joe Richey | Brigham Young |

Roland Minson has become only the second player in conference history to score more than 700 points during his college career. Minnie has 724 now with two more games to go. Joe Nelson, the only other player to hit this charming circle, scored 818 digits in four years competition. That makes Minnie's average scoring per game a good deal above that of the great Joe Nelson. Maybe we ought to retire number 11.

Brigadiers, Torpedoes, Cop Titles

by Kent Larsen

This week winds up the intra-mural basketball play as the Brigadiers won the Monday league and the Torpedoes won in the Thursday league.

In Thursday's league, the Torpedoes, sparred by Busby with 25 points, downed the facility 44-24. Neilson copped 14 points to spark Kik Ora to a 36-31 win over Utah's Basin. The rest of the games were forfeits, the ACS over the Bullshooters and the Bookshooters over the Islanders.

The Monday league was marked by three forfeits, one the Brigadiers over the Lambda Delta. The Vikings and the Tausigs lost by a double forfeit and the Tempers and Brickers also lost by a double forfeit. The only game played Monday was Delta Phi vs Gamma Tau. The Delta Phi won 50-20.

The date for the tournament has been set for March 5. It will be composed of two teams from each league and they will play to see who will be this year's intra-mural basketball champions.

Weed, Alfred Get Advanced Study

Two more Brigham Young University students have been granted research fellowships, according to Dr. Thomas L. Martin, dean of the college of applied sciences.

Sterling Weed, Salt Lake City, will do research in soil chemistry at the University of North Carolina.

Keith Alfred, Spring City, will continue his studies in agronomy problems at Cornell University.

Both students are working on advanced degrees.

Beacon Writers Find Readers Hard To Please

The Beacon, student newspaper of Rhode Island State College, was just slightly confused. "Getting out a newspaper is no picnic," it declared. "If we print jokes, students say we are silly; if we don't they say we are too serious. If we publish original matter, they say we lack variety; if we publish things from other magazines, they say we are too lazy to write our own. If we stay in the office, we ought to be out rustling material; if we're out rustling material, we are not attending to business in the office. If we wear old clothes, we are insolvent college students; if we wear new ones, we put the money from graft. What are we supposed to do, anyway? Like us not someone will say we swiped this from an exchange. We did"—ACP.
